The Farmer's Wife

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. It is not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every taint or corruption of element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.

If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid or lazy liver with the look of a cowering indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.

The best agent known to medical science for the cure of these ailments is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a simple, safe, and effective remedy, and has been used by millions of people in all the civilized countries of the world. It is a simple, safe, and effective remedy, and has been used by millions of people in all the civilized countries of the world.

MRS. CHADWICK'S CAREER

The career that led up to the death of Mrs. Chadwick in the Columbia, Ohio, prison last night is that of a woman, who, upon pure nerve alone, mauled men out of more money than they have been swindled out of in this country since the days of the Mississippi Bubble.

At least three banks failed through the Chadwick notes she palmed upon them. Not fewer than a dozen well-established business houses went to the wall on her account. The success of more than one man and the impoverishment of probably hundreds of families may be laid at her door.

Cassie Chadwick burst upon New York in December, 1904. Then she had been a guest at the Holland House for more than a month, living in a magnificence that astonished even the habitués of that luxurious hotel. Her servants were legion, her diamonds myriads, she brought whole coteries from Cleveland in private cars to see "Parsifal." In a month she spent $200,000.

From the Ohio city came word that her mansion on Euclid avenue was the most palatial in the west; that her husband was a society physician of international note; that their fortune ran into tens of millions.

Then, of a sudden, in the midst of this Aladdin's dream, rumors started telling of her impaired financial condition.

Mrs. Chadwick denied this with a confident smile. She even borrowed more money and wrecked another bank. But an obscure financial man named Herbert Newton went to New York from Boston. He wanted her to make good on two notes for $190,000 which she had indorsed by subtle word of mouth. Then disaster fell like a bomb.

Out of Cleveland came the accusation that Cassie Chadwick was none other than Mme. Devere, ex-clairvoyant and hypnotist, who, born in obscurity in Canada, had been convicted of forgery there. For her eighteenth birthday, had been paroled, fled, only to serve another term for the same offense in Ohio within two years.

How she fooled aged C. P. Beckwith, of the Oberlin National Bank, until the bank was broken and he went to his grave, is well-known recent history; also how a dozen other Ohio institutions lent themselves "dry" upon her promise to pay. Complaints began coming in by the sheaf. News followed that her debts were in the millions; that she could not pay; that every note she had ever given was a forgery or unbacked.

Her last card was played when she said, "I am the daughter of Andrew Carnegie." For a day the woman triumphed through the effect of this astounding disclosure, but when Mr. Carnegie not only denied his paternity, but repudiated the notes, federal officers swooped down on her and she was haled back to Cleveland for trial.

On March 27, 1905, Judge Taylor, in that city, sentenced her to ten years and three months' imprisonment. She had been a federal prisoner ever since.

WORKING AT A DIZZY HEIGHT.

A new record for steeplejacking was made yesterday, when Ernest Cappelle climbed up the flagstaff of the Singer Building tower, New York, and clamped a gilded globe to the top of the staff, 703 feet above the ground. Thousands of people along Broadway and other downtown streets stopped to watch the daring little man as he made the perilous ascent, while thousands more viewed the novel sight from the windows of the big office buildings in the vicinity.

Cappelle made his appearance on top of the tower accompanied by an assistant, who remained at the base of the flagstaff. With the assistance of a rope which dangled from a pulley at the top of the staff Cappelle began the climb, and after several attempts finally reached the top about an hour later. The staff is 96 feet 7 inches long. Sixty-two feet 3 inches of this is above the pinnacle of the tower, while 34 feet of it is firmly supported inside. The staff is 10 1/2 inches in diameter at the base, 9 1/2 inches at the tower and 5 1/2 inches at the top where Cappelle clamped the steel globe, which is 12 inches in diameter.

Working at the dizzy height Cappelle pasted gold leaf on the globe until the watching crowd below could see it glistening in the bright sunlight. Occasionally Cappelle swayed to and at his work, exciting fears among the thousands of watchers that he would fall. Cappelle remained at the top of the pole for about an hour, sitting in a boy's chair slung from the signal halliards.

An east wind was blowing, but apparently did not hinder the steeplejack as he worked his way slowly down the staff.

Cappelle's contract, which calls for the gilding of the ball and the application of five coats of paint, makes a record in high climbing work in New York. It is said that the young man—he is scarcely more than a boy—will receive $1,000 for the work. He was entirely at ease regarding the feat, and made the obvious comment that it doesn't make much difference whether it is 600 or 6,000 feet—that when a man gets up that high in the air either he stays there and does his work, or he comes down without any delay.

His Dear Old Mother.

"My dear old mother, who is now eighty-three years old, thrives on Electric Bitters," writes W. B. Brunson, of Dublin, Ga. "She has taken them for about two years and enjoys an excellent appetite, feels strong and sleeps well." That's the way Electric Bitters affect the aged, and the same happy results follow in all cases of female weakness and general debility. Weak, puny children, too, are greatly strengthened by them. Guaranteed also for stomach, liver and kidney troubles, by all druggists, 50c.
